“ I want to send my deepest sympathy to the family of Mrs. Annie Horton.

The bible tells us we can gain comfort from God, especially during times of sorrow. We pray to our heavenly father for help to cope with the sorrow felt from the death of a loved one.

By prayer and supplication along with thanksgiving, let your petitions be made known to God; and the peace of God that surpasses all understanding will guard your hearts and your mental powers by means of Christ Jesus. Philippians 4:6

May you find comfort by relying on our heavenly father and learning more about the blessings of God's kingdom.

“ So sorry for your family's loss. I've just learned of her passing. I was once one of Mrs. Horton's students. She actually taught all four of us kids throughout her years. She will always be remembered as one of the toughest and fairest teachers I've ever known. She knew what each student was capable of and accepted no less. She never differentiated students by their race, who their parents were, any social status. She didn't care how difficult a student was she still continued to push and help them excel. I saw her with students who could try and average person and she kept right on. I always remembered her as being extremely tough and extremely fair. I've seen her take a student that was bigger and turn them over and tear their hind parts up and use that wooden paddle (that was feared by all) to bend those fingers all the way back and tear that hand up because you were doing less than what she knew you capable of. I also remember her putting together packets; soap, wash cloths for students that didn't have basic needs to have as rewards too. Although those who may never have met her may think she was extreme, she never once failed to lift a child and let them know they were capable of more. She was tough as they come and there should be more teachers like her that expected more and truly didn't judge one child better than another. The kids today wouldn't know what to do with a teacher like her. You can best believe they would intimidate her and they would respect her. Rest in peace Mrs. Horton!

“ Condolences to the Horton family. I reflect on nothing but fond memories of Mrs. Horton, our third grade teacher at North Everetts Elementary school. Mrs. Horton was loved, respected, and feared by all students there. I will always cherish her friendship as a student and as an adult.

“ I will never forget how you always found a way to make us smile, even when you were fussing at us. You were one of the first people outside of my family to teach me that being beautiful was not always about how you looked, but how you carried yourself and treated other people. You will forever be my "Miss Elite 20".
