“ Saying good bye is not easy, but I have to. Little did I realize that yesterday's visit would be the last one before she took her flight. She expressed she was not feeling that well. But in ministering to her she grunted and said I feel better! .She was always on the receiving end for prayer. Yes we even shared our last prayer together yesterday. This one was different. Social distancing kept us on opposite sides but the prayer went up anyway. She loved getting her hair done. Don't you know she would have loved t me being able to do that? She understood the time we are in with that. So she was happy with with a spruce up knowing she looked just fine. Our normal departure was always with a hug. But not this time, our final say was we are gonna get through this and we will be able to hug each other again! Well that was our plan. God 's plan for her was different from ours. Her hurt is comforted now. You all are in my prayers. RIP Mrs. Annie Razor. By Maggie Sharp
