“ I miss you Marshayla, everyday.. every minute. You know, by now I thought I'd be over the sadness of losing you... I happy cry every now and then in remembrance of you.. especially at Chase's birthday parties but I can't help but to cry a few sad tears knowing you were gone too soon and one of my only friends. 5 years seems like forever and enough time to heal. But unfortunately grief will last forever.. and sometimes on my worst days the pain from Jan 13 resurfaces like a wildfire. But I know that's only to knock me down and you wouldn't approve of that kind of thinking, some days my heart feels heavy and I think how will I live with this pain forever. Then I look at Chase and somehow the pain goes away. You are cherished in my heart forever.

“ I'm at a loss for words, but I need to express this. I miss you so much. I wish I could go back to the days we were always together. It's still so strange to me that you're gone, and I'm still trying to come to terms with it. Every night I break down crying because of how much I miss you. You will forever be in my heart and on my mind. I love you

“ My condolences to the family. As Marshayla’s former high school assistant principal, I enjoyed having her at my school. She was an intelligent & vibrant young lady who can make me laugh. I remember our conversations on Michigan (some of my family are from there as well) & on racial justice. She was very mature for her age. I admired her returning to school after having her son. She was determined to get her diploma & graduate with her classmates. My heart mourns but the Scripture says to be absent in the body is to be present with the Lord. Rest peacefully. Viking Strong.
