“ Christmas is almost here and it's been a long year with out you. I think about you everyday and miss you everyday. Nate still asks about you all the time he keeps asking when you are coming out of the sky I'm pretty sure he thinks you are in a airplane. Rylee really really misses you so much she would be making you so proud right now of how she's handling life. She's doing great in school with learning and also making friends. I wish you could have been at the Christmas play. Anyways, I really wish you could respond but I know you can't. I love you and Christmas won't be the same without you.

“ Well sweetheart, it is going on 9 months now and I still cannot truly believe you are at rest. I love you and miss you so much Nicholas! I often hear your voice in the comments you would have made about random subjects or things going on in life right now. Most make me laugh and some make me stand tall and fight. I love and miss you baby. Rest well until...Love Mommy

“ My Nephew Nick words can't explain the hurt that I'm going through now. I'm still trying to process the fact that you are no longer here with us. I was so proud of you for the Man and father you had become. You made so many positive changes in your life being such a young man and I will cherish that memory for a lifetime. I loved you Nick and I pray that God comfort me and my family in the days weeks and months ahead. I love you Nephew and I'm going to miss seeing that smile on your face whenever I saw you. Take your rest now in the arms of God Nephew and just know that Uncle Dennis loves you and will keep the memories of you in my heart and mind

“ My beautiful son Nicholas. I love you so much baby. I wish I could pinch myself and wake up and tell you I had an awful dream, but it is now apparent that I cannot 😞. I chose to share this memory because it was the first time you got your hair braided and put those earrings in and did not have piercing, lol. You were in the 7th or 8th grade and I did not agree with any of that. Well, here come the tears and the rest is history. At least the house stayed clean for a month, lol. You are a cutie son. Your spirit is as sweet as that little smile on your face. I love you baby and miss you already. Until we meet again my love...
